

Chester Zoo – Networks for Nature project.

Networks for Nature is an ambitious landscape scale community conservation project spanning from Ellesmere Port to West Cheshire.

Our vision for Networks for Nature is to create thriving, connected, wildlife-rich landscapes across the region, benefitting both people and nature, and driven by community collaboration and partnership. The project aims to make nature more accessible and inclusive for everyone, to improve wellbeing and empower more people to have an active role in conservation through protecting and enhancing their local green spaces.

We are in the early stages of this five-year project, and we want to hear from you! If you are part of a community looking to get involved, know of a green space or just want to hear more, then get in touch with Jane Absalom, Community Engagement Officer at Chester Zoo, in j.absalom@chesterzoo.org
